Thank you for coming to explore the use of Medicinal Cannabis for the treatment of your condition. Please note that the Health Department (TGA) has approved the use of Medicinal Cannabis for specified conditions. We have to expect that not all submissions will be successful. Consistent with the NSW Health recommendations, this guidance advises that medicinal cannabis products containing THC are generally not appropriate for patients who:

- have a previous psychotic or concurrent active mood or anxiety disorder.
- are pregnant, planning on becoming pregnant, or breastfeeding; and/or
- have unstable cardiovascular disease.
- I understand that the use of Medicinal Cannabis is on a personal trial basis. The formulation and dosage will have to be customised depending on the benefits and tolerability.

POSSIBLE ADVERSE EFFECTS FROM THE TREATMENT WITH MEDICINAL CANNABIS:

- Drowsiness, Lethargy, Disorientation/Hallucination
- Nausea, Dry mouth, Diarrhoea
- Coordination problems and Gait instability
- Vertigo
- Altered Cognition and Judgement
- Social withdrawal
- Risk of Dependency
- Interactions with your regular medications and Alcohol
- I will alert my doctors of any adverse side effects and agree to attend for regular monitoring and testing for liver and kidney function as long as Medicinal Cannabis is prescribed.
- Patients are cautioned and AGREE not to drive or operate machinery when taking Medicinal Cannabis (THC dominant).
- I consent to receiving SMS reminders for appointments and communication regarding Medical Cannabis Orders
